Then tie in a floured cloth and boil for forty minutes, putting it into salted boiling water, and keeping it in the boil all the time. Dish into a deep vegetable dish, and pour over it a sauce made with onehalf pint of sweet milk, boiled with half a small teacupful of water the cauliflower was boiled in. Stir to a thin paste with cold water a small teaspoonful of eorn starch; add to the boiling milk and water. Put in a piece of butter as large as an egg and one teaspoonful of sharp vinegar; stir till the butter melts. Pour over the cauliflower and serve it at once. There are very few palates that will not be pleased with such a succulent dish; if there be any left, chop it up with as much cold boiled potato, and serve very hot with sauce mixed in it for breakfast.

The Canine Curse.

Observing men are of the opinion that an ordinary dog-and he is always hungry-will eat and destroy in a twelvemonth, the equivalent of that which if given to a well-bred pig, would make him weigh at the expiration of that time, 300 pounds, gross; 286,000 such pigs would aggragate 85,800,000 pounds of pork, now worth at the home shipping station, more than $4,700,000; requiring to transport them, more than 2,860 cars, carrying fifteen tons each, or a train more than sixteen miles long. This would represent nearly $1,500,000 more than the entire amount paid in the State in 1880, for school, township, and State taxes combined; it would build 9,400 school-houses and churches, worth $500 each, or would pay the average wages of 14,000 school teachers, twice the number now employed. A condition of affairs, of which the above is but a poor outline, is at the bottom of what is each year becoming a greater and more irrepressible conflict between the wool growers and the savage brutes that keep in jeopardy, or destroy the flocks that, protected, would enlarge and increase to the extent of producing the wool for which we now send millions across the seas. If the dogs are maintained as a luxury, they are a luxury we cannot afford and should give give way to something less expensive, and less prodyctive of loss and misery.

The rearing of better classes of sheep, always indicates a high state of civilization, where intelligence, comfort, and competence abound, and no more unfailing sign of ignorance, squalor, and poverty, can be manifested, than the presence of a varied and increasing assortment of flea-bitten curs, unclean, and of low degree. It should not be difficult to choose between raising sheep and growing dogs .- Hon. F. D. Coburn, in American Agriculturist.

COTTON SEED.—The New Orleans Democrat says: From all portions of the country comes the information that the amount of seed to the staple is unprecedented in the history of cotton. The average to Mississippi, this season, is reported to be 2,000 pounds of seed to a bale of lint. Whereas, in other years, it rarely exceeds 1,500 pounds. The result will be, if the same average holds good for the entire country, a heavy excess of production in cotton seed. The receipts of cotton seed at this port would seem to indicate this. We have received to date 271,181 sacks of cotton seed, as against 175,000 last year, an increase of 54 per cent. Our cotton receipts for the same period have been increased but slightly, less than 3

A New Disinfectant.

The new disinfectant which has come into such considerable use in England, on account of its proved efficacy, is prepared as follows: Russian turpentine and water are placed in huge earthenware jars, surrounded by hot water; air is driven through the mixture in the jars continually for 300 hours, the result of this being a decomposition of the turpentine and the formation of a peculiar watery solution. After evaporation, the substance is placed in tin cans; it is described as being a light brown powder, of a very pleasant taste and odor, is not poisonous nor damaging in any respect, and is capable in a wery remarkable degree of preventing or arresting putrefactive changes.

STUFFED EGG-PLANTS.-Halve and parboil. When soft enough to stick with a fork remove from the water and let cool. Then cut the inside, being careful not to break the skin. Next take bread that has been previously soaked in water. Squeeze as dry as possible and mix with the pulp of the wegetable. Add to that a good-sized onion, a little parsley, and two or three eggs. Season with pepper and salt, and the filling is ready for use. Before putting into the stove sprinkle with toasted bread crumbs, Another and quicker way to make the stuffing is to mix the pulp with the juice of an onion, a tomato, and a couple of eggs. Thicken with boiled rice and season to taste.

Rice Muspins.—Rice mulins maked in gem pans are very nice, and are easy to make. A pint of sweet milk and three eggs, thickened with a table-spoonful of flour, and a cup of rice, steamed until it is tender, are needed promptly filled by Powen & Bankspake, Jackson, Miss.

Corn and Pork Balsing.

Corn is the most costly feed that we in the South, with our worn soils and slovenly methods of farming, can feed to hogs.
